

Dance events this week: Right Here, Arena Dances and MDT

March 30, 2016 — 9:33am

Right Here Showcase

Back for its second year, Right Here offers a new lineup of local contemporary dance artists. This weekend, Penelope Freeh collaborates with London choreographer Donna Schoenherr on a new work about motion picture pioneer Eadweard Muybridge ("Heliotrope") while Melissa Birch uses a dance-theater lens to explore family relationships in "Who Moved My Child." Next week, Megan Mayer will premiere "This is supposed to be my fertile window," channeling "blue-eyed soul" singer Dusty Springfield, Planned Parenthood's Cecile Richards and Motown choreographer Cholly Atkins as she explores gender, impersonation and the contentious state of women's health care, while composer Craig Harris presents "Elijah in the Wadi," which incorporates music and multimedia elements. (7:30 & 9 p.m. Fri.-Sun. through April 10, Illusion Theater, 528 Hennepin Av. S., Mpls. $10-$30 suggested. 612-724-7372, righthereshowcase.weebly.com)
